

EOD Technician

Company Description

RaySecur is revolutionizing security imaging with the world's first desktop scanners capable of seeing inside objects, such as packages and letters. A game-changer relative to x-ray which produces static 2D images and uses ionizing radiation, our mmWave systems are completely safe and provide a real-time, 3D view of concealed items in full motion. Our systems are used by Fortune 500 companies and governments around the world and are backed by cutting-edge AI software and expert support through our partnership with the EOD Warrior Foundation, providing our clients with access to the world's leading threat experts on demand.

Job Description

Our experienced Explosive Ordnance Disposal (EOD) Technicians support RaySecur's remote threat identification program, EODSecur™. In this role, you will provide remote assistance and expert second opinions to customer-initiated requests upon receipt of suspicious mail. This includes conventional and non-conventional explosive devices, powders, liquids, and contraband. Benefits include direct customer engagement, training on all aspects of mmWave imaging systems, and access to senior leadership. If you love EOD work, have an entrepreneurial drive, and want to transform an industry, this program is a great way to build your career in the private sector.

Responsibilities

- Provide web and phone support to assist with remote analysis of potential threats.
- Deliver system demonstrations remotely via the web and occasional trainings at client site.
- Assist with final assembly, test, and certification of MailSecur scanners.
- Conduct occasional installations, field repairs at client site.

Required Qualifications

- NAVSCOLEOD Graduate
- Military 8-10 years of service experience
- Master EOD Technician and Certified EOD Team Leader
- Experience with IEDs and advanced IED Defeat training
- Experience with reading and interpreting x-ray is required
- Excellent English language additional languages a plus
- Good computer skills, experienced with Microsoft products

Who You Are

You have exceptional leadership skills, are an independent thinker able to make quick decisions on your feet, and have great customer presence representing the organization with the highest level of professionalism. You have excellent verbal and written communication skills, enjoy hands on technical work, and remote customer support. You can be counted on to get things done and thrive in a dynamic and fast-paced environment.
